In Bruges - Martin McDonagh 2008-04-15

You might be asking 'Where IS Bruges?' Well; it is in Belgium, and the filming of the city is absolutely breathtaking. If you enjoyed nothing else about this film, you would still really appreciate the beautiful views of the ancient buildings and canals. It follows two hitmen, Ray (Colin Farrell) and Ken (Brendan Gleeson) who are forced to hideout in Bruges after Ray accidentally kills a child during a hit. Whilst they are meant to be keeping a low profile and waiting for their boss (Ralph Fiennes) to call, Ray's tempestuous nature and a crew of bizarre insidt characters make this an impossible task. Farrell and Gleeson are comically opposed characters, offering much in the way of snappy, funny dialogue, which is only complimented by the appearance of Fiennes as their no nonsense, foul mouthed boss. The direction makes much use of the spectacular backdorp that Bruges provides, and Farrell in particular delivers an entertaining performance along with the rest of the cast.

From that, and that simple premise, McDonagh creates the most bizarre, tortured lovebirds, and one of the most moving and violent endings of any Irish play, and of any kind of play. In this play, McDonagh shows us that laughter is the best medicine. It's a beautiful play, and it's funny, and it's angry, and it's beautiful. In short, it's a masterpiece. No Country for Old Men - Paddy Lyons 2008 Once a cover-up story and diaspora, in the 1990s Ireland began to attract immigration from other parts of the world: a new citizenry. By the first decade of the twenty-first century, the ratio between GDP and population placed Ireland among the wealthiest nations in the world. The Peace Agreements of the mid-1990s and the advent of power-sharing in Northern Ireland have enabled Ireland's story to change still further. No longer locked into troubles from the past, the Celtic Tiger can now leap in new directions. These shifts in culture have left Ireland's literary opportunity to look afar at its own past and, thereby, new perspectives have also opened for Irish Studies. The contributors to this volume explore these new openings; the essays examine writings from both now and past in the new frames afforded by new times.

Martin McDonough - Richard Rankin Russell 2007-11-15 This book represents the first collection of original critical material on Martin McDonough, one of the most celebrated young playwrights of the last decade. Credited with reinvigorating contemporary Irish drama, his dark, despairing comedies have been performed extensively both on Broadway and in the West End, culminating in an Olivier Award for The Pillowman and an Academy Award for his short film Six Shooter. In Martin McDonough, Richard Rankin Russell brings together a variety of theoretical perspectives - from global cosmopolitanism to postcolonial criticism - to consider McDonough's plays in unprecusse critical dialogue. These essays cover topics such as gender, politics, the dehumanizing violence and the role of Catholicism in the work of this most precocious of contemporary dramatists. Contributors: Marion Castleberry, Brian Cliff, Joan Fitzpatrick Dean, Marta Doyle, Laura Eldred, Jose Lanters, Patrick Lonergan, Stephanie Pollock, Richard Rankin Russell, Karen VanderVliet

Oscar Wilde and Contemporary Irish Drama - Graham Price 2018-10-23 This book is about the Wildean aesthetic in contemporary Irish drama. Through elucidating a discernible Wildean strand in the plays of Brian Friel, Tom Murphy, Thomas Kilroy, Martina Carroll, and Frank McGuinness, it demonstrates that Oscar Wilde's importance to Ireland's theatrical canon is equal to that of W. B. Yeats, J. M. Synge and Samuel Beckett. The study examines key areas of the Wildean aesthetic: his aestheticizing of experience via language and self-conscious performance; the notions of the dandy in Wildean texts and how such a figure is engaged in today's dramas; and how his contribution to the concept of a 'verbal theatre' has influenced his dramatic successors. It is of particular pertinence to academics, postgraduate students in the fields of Irish drama and Irish and French literature, and for those interested in the work of Oscar Wilde, Brian Friel, Tom Murphy, Thomas Kilroy, Martina Carroll and Frank McGuinness. okopoj

The Woods, Lakeboat, Edmond - David Mamet 2014-10-03 Three plays from the Pulitzer Prize and Tony Award-winning author of Glengarry Glen Ross and American Buffalo. The Woods is a modern dramatic parable about, as Mamet put it, "why men and women have a hard time trying to get along with each other." The story features a young man and woman spending a night in his family's cabin where they experience passion, then disillusionment, but are in the end reconciled by mutual need. In Lakeboat, an Ivy league college student takes a summer job as a cook aboard a Great Lakes cargo ship where the crewmembers —men of all ages—share their wild fantasies about sex, gambling, and violence. Mamet also wrote the screenplay to the 2006 film starring Peter Falk and Denis Leary. In Edmond, a white-collar New York City man is set morally adrift after a visit to a fortune-teller. He soon leaves an unfulfilling marriage to find sex, adventure, compassion, and, ultimately, the meaning of his existence. Mamet also wrote the screenplay for the 2005 film starring William H. Macy. "T[ha] beautifully conceived love story." —Chicago Daily News on The Woods "Mamet's language has never been so precise, pure, and affecting." —Richard Eder of The New York Times on The Woods "Richly overheard talk and loopy, funny construction." —Michael Feingold in The Village Voice on Lakeboat "A riveting theatrical experience that illuminates the heart of darkness." —Jack Kroll of Newsweek on Edmond

In-Ver-Face Theatre - Aleks Sierzi 2014-10-23 This is the most controversial and newsworthy plays of British theatre are a rash of rude, vicious and provocative pieces by a brat pack of twentysomethings who debuted with the now legendary The repeats and audiences with their bloody mix of sex, violence and street-corner. In-Ver-Face is the first book to explain this exciting outburst of creative self-expression by what in other contexts has been called Generation X, or Thatcher's Children, the 'yobs' who grew up during the last Conservative Government. The book argues that, for example, Trainspotting, Blasted, Mojo and Shopping and Pking are much more than a collection of shock tactics - taken together, they represent a consistent critique of modern life, one which focuses on the problem of the crisis of masculinity and the futility of consumerism. The book contains extensive interviews with playwrights, including Sarah Kane (Blasted), Mark Ravenhill (Shopping and Pking),

Irish Theater in America-John P. Harrington 2009-02-28 For over 150 years, Irish playwrights, beginning with Dion Boucicault, have been celebrated by American audiences. However, Irish theater as represented on the American stage is a selective version of the national drama, and the underlying causes for Irish dramatic success in America illuminate the cultural state of both countries at specific historical moments. Irish Theater in America is the first book devoted entirely to the long history of this transatlantic exchange. Born out of the conference of the Irish Theatrical Diaspora project, this collection gathers together leading American and Irish scholars, in addition to established theater critics. Contributors explore the history of Irish theater in America from Harrigan and Hart, through some of the greatest and most disappointing Irish tours of America, to the most contemporary productions of senior Irish playwrights such as Brian Friel and younger writers such as Martin McDonagh and Conor McPherson. Covering the complexity of the relationship between Irish theater and the United States, this volume goes beyond the expected analysis of plays to include examinations of company dynamics, analysis of audience reception, and reviews of production history of individual works. Contents include: Mick Moloney, “Harrigan, Hart, and Braham: Irish-America and the Birth of the American Musical” Nicholas Grene, “Faith Healer in New York and Dublin” Lucy McDarmid, “The Abbey, Its ‘Helpers,’ and the Field of Cultural Production in 1913” Christina Hunt Mahony, “‘The Irish Play’: Beyond the Generic”
